The Iceman in the South Tyrol Museum of Archaeology

The South Tyrol Museum of Archaeology is located in the Museum Street in the provincial capital of Bozen/Bolzano, opposite the Bozen City Museum. The museum documents the history of the land, from the Old and Middle Stone Ages (15,000 B.C.) to the Carolingian period (A.D. 800). The permanent exhibition includes original finds, reconstructions, videos and also interactive multimedia stations. Since March 1998, the Iceman, one of the most famous and important mummies in the world, has also been open to the public. In addition, an entire floor provides insight into Ötzi's daily life, his clothing made of furs and grasses, and Ötzi's equipment. Ötzi's body was found in the mountains near Tisenjoch, close to the Ötztal Alps at an altitude of 3,210 meters. Many researchers and numerous investigations have helped to reconstruct Ötzi's life. It is now known that Ötzi lived around 3,300 BC and that he died a natural death in the Alps. Ötzi is said to have lived to be about 45 years old and his body measured about 1.58 m.

Kastelruth – Bremicher Platzl– Tiosels – Kastelruth

To the right of the church, we take the Bühlweg (sign no. 10), which first leads us down to the Tisana river. Cross the river at the Föstlhof, turn off to the right, and continue onwards to the Lafayhof and Fegerhof farms. After a short walk, we come to the little Bremicher Platzl rest stop. From here, a short walk southwards leads to the Café Sabina, where we turn left and follow path no. 10 to the Tschonhof farm. Turn right here, and continue onwards to the road to St. Michael. Cross this road and take the forest trail (sign 7/8) to the "Wasserebene" and back to Kastelruth via Tiosels.

Walking time: approx. 2 hours.

Distance: 5 km

Ascent/Descent: 191 hm
